

Hola SLF family,

In the midst of the turmoil in the eastern borders of the Ukraine and the horrific acts of war on behalf of Russia, I feel called to express how heartbroken our entire firm is for the residents of these countries. The number of civilians who will inevitably be affected by the decisions of the few in power is a scary reality that many of us are already familiar with back in our home countries.

We know that migration is not the first option for a lot of people and that the circumstances that influence this difficult decision is complicated. Our hearts are with all of you who have escaped violence and still carry those painful memories with you everywhere you go. We acknowledge that though this is happening thousands of miles away, the effects reach us in our minds and our hearts.

Personally, I am praying for those living in the in-between of the violence as these events develop and are following this story closely in order to be prepared to help when we know how.

□
Con much amor,
Zaira Solano

□ USCIS UPDATES □

- We have some GREAT news for VAWA Self-Petitioners. I-360 VAWA -USCIS no longer requires self-petitioners to currently reside or to have resided with the abuser during the qualifying spousal or parent-child relationship. Instead, the self-petitioner must demonstrate that they are residing or have resided with the abuser at any time in the past. This is huge!!!
- The U.S. Department of Homeland Security (DHS) has announced a proposed change on the public charge ground of inadmissibility! The aim is to reduce fear and confusion among immigrant communities and U.S. citizens. It could lead to fair and consistent adjudications for those seeking admission at ports of entry or adjustment of status to that of a lawful permanent resident inside the United States. We will fill you in once the changes are final!

What does this mean for you?

It means that even if you're no longer residing with an abuser, you may still qualify for VAWA! Need to know if you qualify?

Can I travel?

We get calls, texts, messages about traveling all of the time and rightfully so! Unauthorized travel can lead to complications with USCIS that could put your entire case in danger and should be avoided at all costs.

Here are the most common questions we receive:

- "I have DACA, can I travel within the U.S?"
- "I've had an emergency in my home country, but my application hasn't been approved. How can I be granted permission to travel to my home country?"
- "I have TPS, can I travel internationally?"

We don't recommend anything that would put your status at risk, however, through advanced parole, it's possible for certain applicants to travel!

If approved, this could be what your experience is like! □

Angel takes the next step!

We LOVE rooting our clients on! We've been following Angel's story closely since he first came to us looking to apply for DACA. Countless of renewals later, he's started a business, helped his family grow their impact in the immigrant community of Atlanta, and continued reaching for his goals relentlessly.

The next step?

A marriage-based Green Card through his high-school sweetheart Maria! We couldn't be prouder or more excited for Angel's future and want to congratulate the happy couple! ♥

We caught up with Angel last week to ask him what his experience with our firm's been and what the benefits of having the SLF team on his side are.

Cheers to loving where you work!

We had a great time playing 2 truths and 1 lie in our latest virtual happy hour! Our team came together from over 5 states to get to know each other, share their favorite alcoholic beverage, and join in on SLF fun! We're passionate about building an inclusive company culture at SLF and we do that by getting together virtually or in-person to help foster comradery between our departments.

TEAM HAPPY HOUR!

Here are a few reasons people love to work at SLF!

VERO

"I like working at SLF because the whole team is very supportive. I really like being able to help migrants to have better life opportunities in the US. I like being able to be in direct contact with migrants and their stories of resiliency."

"Every task and every single step I take in SLF I always feel supported! Everyone here has something to teach me. I love the human aspect, too! We really help immigrants build a better future and a meaningful way and you can see it. I love everyone's personalities!"

DIEGO

ALEJANDRA

"I love being helpful and speaking with the clients directly! The possibility of helping them out even if it's with something super small like pointing them in the direction of online resources can have a big impact in their lives."
